Manal & Alaa -

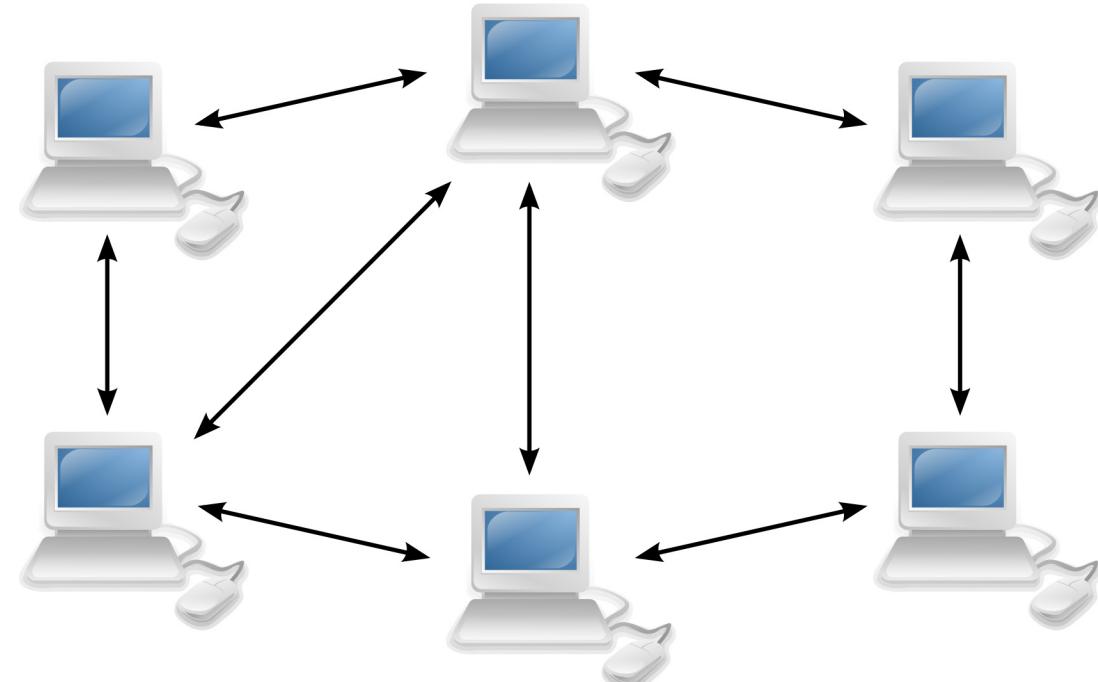

The image shows a screenshot of a blog website. At the top, there's a navigation bar with links for 'Home', 'About us', and 'Photos'. Below the navigation is a colorful header featuring a dragon logo on the left and the text 'Manal and Alaa's bit bucket free speech from the blettes' in the center. To the right of the header is a search bar. The main content area has a yellow background with a red and white革命 in Egypt flag graphic. The text in the yellow area is in Arabic. Below this, there's a section titled 'Recent Posts' with several links to other blog entries. On the left side of the page, there's a sidebar with a dragon logo at the top, followed by a list of tags: 'politics Egypt', 'english posts black', 'wednesday photos', 'Jan25 announcements', 'and statements black', 'saturday a7a department', 'protests artwork', and 'More tags'. Below this is an 'Archive' section with a list of years from 2013 down to 2009, each with a corresponding number of posts. At the bottom of the sidebar, there's a section titled 'Archive' with a list of months from December down to November, each with a corresponding number of posts.

Okay, so I build a crazy self-steering contraption... and it actually works!!!

currently self steering a beam-reach from Bay of Islands towards Cavalier Islands.

It's inspired by a "servo pendulum" design, but only uses junk you probably already have lying around. So far I have spent $30. $20 on rope and $10 on a pulley. (although I already had a few of those in my junk drawer)

So the design is a horizontal windvane, made from coreflute (aka coroplast) a door hinge and some bolts as a counter weight.

Then it goes to a little capsize at the end of what was the boat hook (which was previously a boom)
